

Colonial Era Music/Dance Concert in the Park

Performed by The Reel Thing
with Patricia Campbell, Dance Mistress

Friday, August 21st, 7:00pm – 8:30pm

Overlooking the Reflecting Pool behind the Visitor Center at Putnam Memorial State Park. Corner of Rte 58 And Rte 107. Redding, Connecticut.

A Colonial era music concert playing tunes and dances known to the soldiers encamped at Putnam Park and the Redding townspeople alike during the Revolutionary War.

The Reel Thing Players

A Minuet will be explained and performed. There will also be participatory dancing for a taste of what an evening at Putnam Park may have looked like when the town people came to visit the troops 230 years ago. As was the custom, as soon as camp was set, arrangements were made for a dance with the locals in each town.
